

Silver and Gold for Cheap!

Silver and Gold

And other Precious Metals

Copyright 2016 by Greg Nichols

I am trying to get you into an opportunity mindset. To the money steward of God, who walks in faith, obstacles become opportunity. Other people's junk becomes your treasure. This video shows how scrap silver and gold is laying around, even at the Goodwill. Note that the guy even explains how to identify it as real Sterling silver instead of silver plated. You can collect scrap silver and gold, and then send it to melting plants to get it melted into 1 ounce pure bars and the firm then returns it to you, or sends you cash for it, your choice. This is a way to gradually build up your silver and gold investment inventory.

You can get $1240 per ounce gold at $100-$200 an ounce, or even less. It is work, but fun work. I was at a garage sale and in a little box was a solid gold crown, weighing about .17 ounces, valued at $206. There was some other junk jewelry in the box, and other small items. I gave the lady $10 for the whole box. As I was leaving, I asked where she got that crown. She said it was her grandma's who was deceased. She had held it for 30 years. People are not always in to finding the value of things. It is too much trouble for them. This does not happen every day. But it does happen if your mind is in the right mode. It would be too much trouble for someone to melt .17 ounce of gold, but if you are looking for and collecting it, then it builds up and makes it well worth it. That is why they would sell it to you for a few bucks.

You can get to the garage sells every few weeks, it's a fun way to spend Saturday morning. A phone App can help you locate them, and even map them for you to drive to. Also definitely scout the Goodwill Stores, Thrift Stores and flea markets of your area at least once a month.

Here is a precious metal refinery that is online. Note that they are listed with the Better Business Bureau. Test a firm like this with a small order before sending them a huge one.
